

Federal Financial Aid Eligibility for Preparatory Coursework

Students who are not admitted to a degree program are typically not eligible to receive federal aid. However, if students are enrolled in coursework specifically to meet prerequisites for admission to a degree program, they may be eligible to receive federal student loans for up to one year.

The coursework must be required for admission.

Taking courses to raise GPA in order to be admitted does not qualify under this exception.

The prerequisite courses themselves must be part of an eligible degree program offered at MU, though the student does not have to be in that program.

Students seeking to enter an undergraduate degree program who qualify for the exception may borrow up to $2625 in Federal Stafford funds (with up to $6,000 more in unsubsidized funds for independent students and dependent students whose parents were denied a PLUS loan), and students trying to enroll in a graduate or professional program may borrow as much as $5,500 (and up to $7,000 of additional unsubsidized funds).

In order for eligibility to be reviewed, the form on the back side must be completed.

The student must complete Part A, and submit it to the Academic Unit (i.e. Graduate School, or College of Engineering, or Department of Biological Sciences) to which they are attempting to be admitted.

The Academic Unit must complete Part B, and submit the form to the Office of Student Financial Aid at the address above.

Loan limits mentioned above are taken from electronic announcement
